Lola Moore

Lola Moore was born in Center, Texas to the parents of Lola and M. T. Wallace. The family moved to South Longview, Texas when she was two years old.

She attended Southside Elementary, Maggie B. Hudson Jr. High and is a 1972 graduate of Longview High School. Ms. Moore's post-secondary education was completed in Nacogdoches, Texas at Stephen F. Austin State University where she received Bachelors and Masters Degrees in Elementary Education. After teaching for many years she desired to become a principal at J. L. Everhart Primary School and Jodie McClure Magnet School. Ms. Moore is an administrator in the Human Resources Department of Longview ISD.

As an administrator and teacher for thirty-three years, Ms. Moore has served as a mentor for student teachers, novice teachers and beginning administrators. She has planned and implemented various workshops in inquiry learning, math strategies, literacy, science, writing discipline and classroom management. Presently, Ms. Moore is a certified trainer for the New Jersey Writing Project in Texas. Ms. Moore has served on the City of Longview 21st Century Committee, Race Relations Speakers Bureau, and Parents and Teachers Association and is a life-long member of Parkview Baptist Church. Ms. Moore has one daughter, and two grandchildren.

Alice Day

Alice Day grew up in central Texas and graduated from Austin College in Sherman. She earned her master's degree from Stephen F. Austin State University.

Alice and her husband Mike moved to Longview in the 1960s to teach at Longview High School. She later became Director of the East Texas Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse. When the family moved to Austin in the 1980s, Alice joined the Texas Education Agency staff. Upon returning to Longview in 1990, she served nine years as Program Manager for the City of Longview Drug Task Force, now Partners in Prevention. She also assisted numerous local and statewide service agencies in their organizational development. Before retiring in 2004, she was Deputy of Programs for the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

In Longview, Alice organized the Drug Task Force into a community partnership to promote a safe, healthy, drug-free city. She developed a model that includes community-wide initiatives and grassroots, neighborhood initiatives. Under her leadership, the Race Relations Committee was established; the partnership grew from 15 organizations to more than 120 and became nationally recognized for its success with community mobilization and youth asst building.

Alice now lives in Austin, where she is a ruling elder at Central Presbyterian Church and a community volunteer. She and her daughter, Amy, are the adoptive parents of Kristen, Katherine, Kevin and Sarah.
